A Healthy Increase.

The value of assessable property in Garrard county for the year 1913 was $6,620,202, as against $6,560,185, in the preceding year, an increase of $60,017. This is a pretty healthy increase in view of the constant cry that farming land is decreasing in both price and value, and the additional cry of hard times.

W. B. Burton Sells Reolata.

W. B. Burton has sold to "Bob" Moreland, of Lexington, his good roadster, "Reolata" for a price, just how much we are not at liberty to say, but it reaches up into the four figures. "Reolata," besides having many other virtues to his credit, capped the climax by winning the big sweepstake roadster ring at the State Fair in Louisville last fall.

Candy Sale.

There will be a candy sale at the store of Mr. R. S. Brown, beginning next Saturday afternoon, on every Saturday afternoon and every court day, the proceeds of the various sales to go to the various churches of the city, alternately. The candy will be made by the young ladies in Mr. Brown's store, which will insure its toothsome quality. This is a very laudable undertaking upon the part of the young ladies and the sales should be liberally patronized.

Sheep Claims Certified.

County Clerk J. W. Hamilton has certified the sheep claims of Garrard county to the Auditor for payment. The claim for the year 1913 amounted to $598.55.

There was listed for taxation in the county during 1913, 1211 dogs, and the tax collected on this number of dogs will be pro-rated among the farmers to reimburse them for the ravages among their sheep by the dogs during last year. It is not known exactly how many of these dogs had the tax paid on them, but Mr. Hamilton is of the opinion that the claims will be paid in full.

Hume Rucker Victim Of Highwaymen.

Hume Rucker, a son of our good friend, Mr. I. C. Rucker, of Paint Lick, who is employed by the L. & N. R. R. Co. as a telegraph operator in one of its outlying yards in Louisville, was the victim of a highway robbery on last Friday. When leaving his work to go to his home two men approached him, one showed a big pistol under his nose and demanded his money. Hume, of course produced, just how much we do not know, as one paper says $4, and another $30. Hume hastened to a nearby telephone and called police headquarters and the men were caught at a distant part of the yards.

"Two Old Confederates."

"Two Old Confederates" and the Old Southern Quartette, presenting in the Songs and Stories of the Old Plantation, the "Good Old Times in Dixie," at the Ben Ali Theatre for one performance, February 16. The "Two Old Confederates," who followed "Marse Bob Lee" through the trying days of '61 to '64 are genuine of the old Virginia country gentlemen of anti-bellum days. In their stories and songs they give, as only they can give, a true picture of the good times on the old Southern plantation. They are assisted in their performance by a quartette of genuine Virginia negroes, who sing the old-time songs just as they used to sing them around their cabin doors at evening or at the "corn-husking," or in the cotton fields in the days of long ago. One critic has said of this quartette of negroes: "They look like farm hands and sing like Carusos." This is the most unique performance ever presented on any stage or platform and can never be duplicated. It is as entertaining and amusing as any minstrel show and as instructive as a well-written history. At all their performances the two old Confederates are glad to have as their personal guests on the stage, in uniform, any of the "boys who followed Grant or Lee." Prices 25, 50 and 75 cents. Adv.

An Annual Outrage.

From all over this and adjoining counties come the reports of ravages among the sheep by dogs. Messrs H. C. Arnold, J. G. Burnside and many other farmers of this county have been severe losers of late from this cause. Just at lambing time, when the most harm can be accomplished, seems to be the favorite time for the worthless dogs of the country to make their inroads upon the helpless flocks.

It is true that the farmer is to some extent reimbursed for his losses from the "dog tax fund," which is applied to in a measure reimburse the farmers for their sheep killed, but of late years this fund has grown smaller and smaller, until eventually it will dwindle to a sum hardly worth mentioning. The cause of this is that there are probably not a third of the dogs of the county given in for taxation, farmers are reluctant to list them, and adopt every possible subterfuge to avoid doing so, while in town, out of the possible 500 worthless curs, there is not in all probability one fifth of them listed, and what are listed are never paid on. If the farmer will establish a shotgun quarantine and consider every dog that invades his premises a trespasser and let him have the contents, he will offer better protection to his flocks than all the dog laws and dog taxes ever invented.

Interesting Innovation.

The ladies of Garrard county are preparing to publish a cook book, to contain "her best recipe" from some of the best cooks in the county, and there are none better anywhere. We will each week publish one of the recipes, which may be found on the personal page.

He Taught In Garrard In 1862.

Mr. Alexander P. Surber, from whose pen there appeared an article in last week's issue of the Record, died at the home of his daughter in Junction City last Friday. Mr. Surber was 75 years of age and at one time was one of the most prominent educators in this part of the state.

"Mint-Cola" Plant To Have A New Home.

Mr. Joe S. Haselden has rented of Mr. W. T. West his store room on Lexington street, the old post office building, and will install his Mint-Cola Bottling works therein. The building will be remodeled throughout, a new front installed, and Mr. Haselden proposes to open up a first class ice cream parlor in the front of the building. He expects to be open for business about April 1st.

Carmon-Thomas.

Miss Bessie Mae Thomas and Mr. Walter Byron Carmon, both of Stanford, Ky., were quietly married Wednesday afternoon at the home of Rev. J. W. Porter who performed the ceremony. The bride is the daughter of the late James Thomas and is admired for many attractions.

Mr. Carmon is the son of Mr. A. C. Carmon, who is quite prominent at Stanford.

After February 8th the bridal couple will be at home in Stanford and many friends have good wishes for their welfare. — Lexington Leader.

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Mattie Thomas who formerly lived in Lancaster, and the groom is a brother of Mrs. A. J. Rice of this county.

Wilkerson-Fitzgerald.

Miss Bessie Katherine Wilkerson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Wilkerson and Mr. Forest Fitzgerald, son of ex-jailer Fitzgerald of Danville, went to Jeffersonville Monday, and a telegram to Mr. and Mrs. Wilkerson here on Tuesday morning announced that the young couple were married on Monday night. There was no parental objection, so far as we can learn, and it is supposed that the young couple took this step in order to lend a tinge of romance to the culmination of their courtship.

The bride is one of "the Wilkerson twins" and is a popular member of Lancaster's younger set, and is a most lovable girl. The groom is the proprietor of a dry cleaning establishment in Danville, and one of the rising young business men of our neighboring town. The Record wishes a world of happiness to the young folks.

"A Stitch In Time Saves Nine".

"Better be sore than sorry." The slight soreness of the arm due to vaccination does not hurt much, and it removes a lot of uneasiness and dread of contracting that loathsome, and often dangerous disease, small-pox. The medical fraternity are united upon the theory that vaccination will prevent small-pox altogether, and even should in very rare instances be contracted after vaccination, it would be in the mildest form. The disease is prevalent in many counties of the state and seems to have originated in the railroad camps around Winchester and Paris.

These points are very close to us, and there is direct train connection between those points and Lancaster, and while there has never been even a rumor of a case in Lancaster, still it would not be a bad idea to guard against it. Vaccination, beyond a slight soreness, and possibly a little stiffness of the arm, gives no bad effects, and it would be wise precaution for everyone to be vaccinated.

Fox.

The Fort Worth Tex. Star Telegram contains the following notice of the death of Mr. Richard P. Fox, which occurred in that city on January 30th.

"The body of Richard P. Fox, 47, who died suddenly in the Fort Worth Horse & Mule Company's barn, North Main street, was sent to Wichita Falls Friday by Undertaker Robertson. Burial will take place there. Fox was a stockholder in the Fort Worth Horse & Mule Company and was one of the prominent dealers on the local market. He lived at 1701 Jennings avenue. He is survived by a widow and daughter, Louise; a brother, John Fox, Dawson, Ga., and a sister, Mrs. William O. Riddle of Louisville, Ky."

Mr. Fox's wife who survives him was a daughter of Daniel Bates Walker, formerly of this county, but who some sixteen years ago removed to Wichita Falls Tex., where he has since resided. She is also a niece of Messrs J. A. James and Richard Burnside and Mrs. Sue Anderson of this place. Her mother having been before her marriage to Dan Walker, Miss Tabitha Burnside. Mrs. Fox is widely connected with prominent families throughout this and Madison counties.

The funeral of Mr. Fox was conducted from the home of his brother-in-law Dr. Wade H. Walker, and the services were conducted by Dr. Lapsley McKee formerly of Danville Ky.

$23.50 Per Hundred Average Price

Realized For B. L. Kelly Tobacco
Crop In Lexington Last Week.

The tobacco crop of Mr. B. L. Kelly sold in Lexington last week, brought on an average of 23½ cents per pound, the lowest price realized for a basket being 15 cents and the highest 41 cents per pound. This crop of tobacco attracted the attention of growers all over the state, and after the sale was over Mr. Kelly was beset by tobacco men for a supply of seed, almost any price being offered. He closed out what seed he had to spare at $25. per pound and could have sold almost any quantity at that price, or even more had he demanded it. Mr. Kelly has another crop yet to go upon the market, which was not quite ready at the time of his first shipment, but will be sent over later.

Kentucky Court Of Appeals Holds Parole

Law Mandatory, And By Its Decision
Between 500 And 1000

Convicts Will Secure
Their Freedom.

The Kentucky Court of Appeals on last Friday, in the mandamus case of DeMoss vs. The Commonwealth, rendered substantially the following opinion: that after a prisoner serving sentence under the indeterminate sentence law has served the minimum sentence, and complied with the conditions of the law, that the Board of Prison Commissioners has no discretion, but must grant him his parole. "A prisoner convicted under the indeterminate sentence law who is eligible to parole, is entitled to parole as a matter of right." The opinion was written by Judge Settle, Judges Turner and Hannah dissenting.

The opinion means the parole or release, as soon as the mandate is filed, which will be in thirty days, of at least 500 prisoners from the two penal institutions of the state, and probably as many more will qualify for parole within the next six months. A bill has already been introduced in the Legislature to repeal the indeterminate sentence law. However, it is thought that those prisoners whose rights have accrued under the recent decision would not be effected by the repeal of the law. The Board of Prison Commissioners are already busily engaged in preparing a list of those prisoners who will be eligible for parole under the decision, in order that they may be able to comply with the decision of the court when the mandate is filed and becomes effective.

Collector Hughes Announces Appointments.

Collector John W. Hughes of Danville has made public his list of appointments to the eighteen positions at his disposal, which are as follows: Letcher Saunders, Jessamine county, Chief Deputy. E. M. Mountjoy, Anderson county, Deputy 1st Division. Sewell B. Williams, Breathitt county, 2nd Division. H. Rowan Sautley, Lincoln county, 3rd Division. A. C. Bowling, Laurel county, 4th Division. J. W. Campbell, Bell county, 5th Division. J. N. Francis, Letcher county, 6th Division. Isaac Lanier, Boyle county, Gen'l Deputy Collector. T. Sloan Eastland, Mercer county, Gen'l Deputy Collector. Paul L. Goddard, Mercer county, Income Tax D. C. Hardie Rippey, Anderson county, Stamp D. C., Lawrenceburg. Orion C. McKay, Anderson county, Ass't Stamp D. C., Lawrenceburg. Geo. L. Lyne, Jessamine county, Stamp D. C., Nicholasville. W. J. Poter, Mercer county, Office Deputy Collector. J. C. Hugueley, Boyle county, Office Deputy Collector. D. Tevis Hugueley, Madison county, Office Deputy Collector. V. F. Rubie, Garrard county, Office Deputy Collector.

Among the number there are some who have not as yet been assigned to duty, but these will be put on as rapidly as possible.

The list of appointments appears to us to be an unusually good one, the list is composed of a splendid lot of business men as well as true blue democrats, and speaks exceedingly well for the acumen of Judge Hughes, who had much to contend with in his selection of these men. When you take into consideration that there was from ten to a hundred applicants for each position, and each applicant with absolutely gilt edge recommendations, all of which the affable Collector was compelled to read, the reading often being interrupted by the arrival of "a delegation," which of course must be given an audience, it certainly took a man of exceedingly keen perception to select just the proper man for the positions. However, we believe that no man could have made better or more popular selections than did Judge Hughes.

Fond hearts weary the postman, but they would make the Central Record happy if they would buy their stationery from us.

Tomorrow, Saturday, Feb. 14th, is St. Valentines day.

Now who doubts either the wisdom of the ground hog or the truth of his predictions.

The cold snap will seriously interfere with the business of those hens who went to setting prematurely.

LOST—A pair of gold glasses in case. Reward to finder.
Mrs. Margaret Marksby.

Following the suggestion made by the Record recently, the Graded School is shortly to pull off an "old fashioned spelling bee".

The "bootlegging" industry in Lancaster does not prove a profitable undertaking, the last one to attempt it seems destined for a good long sentence from "Uncle Sam".

The lady who predicted the San Francisco earthquake, the almanac, the goosebone and the groundhog, all join in predicting the coldest weather of the season during February.

Residents of Danville are preparing to erect a monument to the groundhog. "Before you make a rabbit stew, first procure your hare", and brer ground hog is sure a wary animal.

Now while there is so much agitation about dogs in Lancaster, we hope a number of the worthless curs who make the nights hideous with their noise, will be sent to the happy hunting ground.

The plan to give an automobile free in connection with the Louisville Automobile Show, has been abandoned, inasmuch as the arrangement has been found to be in violation of the Federal Laws. No prize will, therefore be given.

The Show will open, as advertised, at seven o'clock Wednesday Evening, Feb. 11th, and continue through the mornings, afternoon and evenings, including Saturday, the 14th. It will be held, as usual, at the Armory.

In The Tender Grasp Of "Uncle Sam".

Wm. Miller, white who was recently convicted of "bootlegging" in Lancaster, and given a fine and jail sentence in police court, has been turned over to "Uncle Sam", Marshal Coleman came over last week and took him before Commissioner Lawwill in Danville. Miller confessed and was held to await the convening of Federal Court in Jackson, which is the fourth Monday, when Chief Herron will have to go to Jackson to appear against him.

Coldest Of Winter.

On last Saturday night the mercury dropped to 10 degrees, which is the coldest of the winter. Taken upon the whole, this has been an exceedingly mild winter, the mercury never going to the Zero mark, and what few cold periods we have had being of short duration.

Catholic Service.

Father O'Bannon of Richmond came down Tuesday and conducted service at the home of Mr. N. Miller for the benefit of the Catholics of the county. These services are held at regular intervals and are very convenient and acceptable to those who have no other opportunity to attend service in their own church.

An Early Lent And A Short One.

The ecclesiastical moon adopted by the churches hundreds of years ago determines the date for Easter, this custom decrees that Easter shall fall upon the first Sunday after the first full moon after March 21st, according to which Easter this year will fall upon March 29th. Lent will therefore begin on February 12th, the earliest since 1818.

ATTENTION HORSEMEN.

The horse and jack season is close at hand and "the early bird catches the worm." Stockmen of other counties are already beginning to get out their literature. Do not be behind hand. Get your cards and bills early. The Record is better prepared than ever to supply your wants along this line. Come in and let us show you, get our figures. We will do your work as well and as cheap as you can get it done elsewhere, and can turn the work out on short notice.

An Old Time Spelling Match.

The Lancaster Graded School will in the near future give an old fashioned spelling match, the book from which the words are to be "given out", being the old time Webster's blue backed speller, the book of our childhood days. Competition will be open to all, and we understand the school will line up against the people. Since the days of the old blue back there has been many innovations in the way of both spelling and pronunciation, and there will doubtless be considerable wrangling between the old timers and the modern spellers over the proper pronunciation of many of the words. There are many people in Lancaster who think they are "some spellers", and they will now have a splendid opportunity to exhibit their learning.

To The Tobacco Growers of Garrard and adjoining Counties:

The Madison House has just closed another successful week selling nearly 350,000 lbs., with prices from 2c to 30c. Good tobacco being scarce, but when shown demands attention and excellent prices, while the low grades have never been higher than at present.

We want to ask those who have tobacco left that you get it to market just as soon as you can, while prices are good. While we expect a steady to strong market throughout, it is best to sell while you know the market is good. During the last week some of the best averages were as follows: W. C. Ross sold 1125 lbs. at average of $18.08, one basket bringing $30; Tudor & Moberly sold 3805 lbs., average of $15.99; Minter & Chamberlain sold 8890 lbs at average of $14.90, over two-thirds of this crop averaged $17. Tips frozen and damaged often keep the general average low, even for an excellent crop. Price Williams sold 895 lbs., averaged $16.50; Haden Bros. sold 1005 lbs., averaged $17.95; Ross & VanArsdale sold 2770 lbs for $443.50.

You will remember that our market is stronger now and has been throughout this year, than it has ever been with us, quality of tobacco considered. And we know that our buyers expect to keep this market right up to the best in the country till we close.

Market your tobacco at once, and continue to sell with the house that gets you the top notch prices--THE MADISON HOUSE. Thanking you, we are,

Very truly yours,

The Madison Tobacco Warehouse Company.

NO NEWS IS NOT ALWAYS GOOD NEWS, ACCORDING TO A STORY TOLD BY ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

One of the stories persistently attributed to Lincoln was that referring to the brand of General Grant's whisky. That was disowned by Lincoln, who referred to his prototype when George H. remarked, upon being told that General Wolfe, then in command of the English forces in Canada, was mad, that he wished Wolfe would bite some of his other generals.

In the fall of 1861 Lincoln entered the telegraph office where Mr. Bates, who writes these reminiscences in Leslie's Weekly, was employed and asked for news from the front. Manager Wilson replied, "Good news, because none," whereupon Lincoln said, "Ah, my young friend, that rule does not always hold good, for a fisherman does not consider it good luck when he can't get a bite."—David Homer Bates' "Reminiscences of Lincoln."

LINCOLN'S ADDRESS TO THE CITIZENS OF SPRINGFIELD ON LEAVING FOR WASHINGTON.

My friends, no one not in my position can appreciate the sadness I feel at this parting. To this people I owe all that I am. Here I have lived more than a quarter of a century. Here my children were born, and here one of them lies buried. I know not how soon I shall see you again. A duty devolves upon me which is greater, perhaps, than any that has devolved upon any other man since the days of Washington. He never would have succeeded except for the aid of divine Providence, upon which he at all times relied. I feel that I cannot succeed without the same divine aid which sustained him, and upon the same Almighty Being I place my reliance for support and hope you, my friends, will pray that I may receive the divine assistance without which I cannot succeed. Again I bid you all an affectionate farewell.

Skin Sufferers--Read!

We want all skin sufferers who have suffered for many years the tortures of disease and who have sought medical aid in vain, to read this.

We, as old established druggists of this community, wish to recommend to you a product that has given many relief and may mean the end of your agony. The product is a mild, simple wash, not a patent medicine concocted of various worthless drugs, but a scientific compound made of well known antiseptic ingredients. It is made in the D.D.D. Laboratories of Chicago and is called the D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema.

This is a doctor's special prescription one that has effected many wonderful cures.

The effect of D. D. D. is to soothe instantly, as soon as applied; then it penetrates the pores, destroys and throws off all disease germs and leaves the skin clean and healthy.

We are so confident of the marvelous power of D. D. D. that we have taken advantage of the manufacturers guarantee, to offer you a full-size bottle on trial. You are to judge the merits of the remedy in your own particular case. If it doesn't help you, it costs you nothing.

D. D. D. Soap is made of the same healing ingredients. Ask us about it.

Diagnosis by Electricity.

For the benefit of the nervous cases that come to the doctor, it has been asserted by Scripture that it is just as necessary to know how emotional they are as it is to know how high the temperature is in a case of fever. Moreover, in many cases it is necessary to find out what experiences in the past or present life of the patient produce emotions. For this purpose the patient sits at ease with hands on the electrodes, which may be so concealed in the arms of his chair that he is unaware that the most intimate processes of his soul are being registered as various words are spoken or various topics of conversation are discussed, the galvanometer showing when a sensitive subject has been touched--Fred W. Eastman, in Harper's Magazine.

NOW HER FRIENDS HARDLY KNOW HER

But This Does Not Bother Mrs. Burton, Under the Circumstances.

Houston, Texas.--In an interesting letter from this city, Mrs. S. C. Burton writes as follows: "I think it is my duty to tell you what your medicine, Cardui, the woman's tonic, has done for me.

I was down sick with womanly trouble, and my mother advised several different treatments, but they didn't seem to do me any good. I lingered along for three or four months, and for three weeks, I was in bed, so sick I couldn't bear for any one to walk across the floor.

My husband advised me to try Cardui, the woman's tonic. I have taken two bottles of Cardui, am feeling fine, gained 15 pounds and do all of my household work. Friends hardly know me, I am so well."

If you suffer from any of the ailments so common to women, don't allow the trouble to become chronic. Begin taking Cardui to-day. It is purely vegetable, its ingredients acting in a gentle, natural way on the weakened womanly constitution. You run no risk in trying Cardui. It has been helping weak women back to health and strength for more than 50 years. It will help you. At all dealers.

Should the Glenn Bill become a law? We think not. There is already a law in effect which permits the Insurance Board to fix the rates of premiums to be charged by insurance companies licensed to do business in Kentucky. Any person who feels that the insurance rate charged is exorbitant may appeal to the Insurance Board for a reduction of the rates. The Insurance Board is appointed by the State Auditor and the Insurance Companies have nothing to do with its selection or make up. The proposed measure would permit this Board to collect out of the gross premiums paid into the Insurance Companies a sum estimated to be One Hundred Thousand Dollars.

The expenditure of this money is left almost entirely to the discretion of the Board, which embraces a creation of a number of new offices and the employment of an army of helpers. This would probably result in an organization of a political board which would be more harmful to the State than the proposed remedies as contended for by the supporters of the bill.

Another very objectionable feature is the encouragement of a discrimination in rates of premiums. We think all persons in the State should have the same rate upon the same class of risk under the same conditions. This bill permits the shrewd and influential advantage over the less experienced who must have insurance to protect their property. There is no objection to the regulation of corporations in the bounds of reason, but there is such a thing as carrying any proposition to the extreme and we think this bill falls within that class of legislation.

Telephone Rates In The Future.

The County may fix telephone rates by franchise as well as the city according to recent decision of the Courts. When the various telephone systems were constructed in this State in most instances a franchise had been previously procured by the Companies from some city, but only a permit was obtained from the Fiscal Courts for a right to use the public highways for the erection of poles and stringing the wires. The Courts now hold it to be the law that these permits thus obtained from the various Counties are void and the poles and wires can be removed at any time by order of the Fiscal Court. Instead of the country people being at the mercy of the city to fix the rates to be charged them by franchise it now proves to be within the power of the County to sell franchises fixing telephone rates to be charged throughout the County. The decision of the Court referred to is not only a satisfaction to the country people of the State, but gives cities which have unwisely disposed of telephone franchises that do not fully protect their rights the opportunity to get relief through franchises sold by the County. This is a very important decision since in many communities there has been a consolidation of telephone companies and a raise of rates and this gives to the people some protection against this form of the destruction of competition.

Pullins.

The remains of Mrs. Margaret Pullins, wife of Mr. David C. Pullins, were brought here from Berea, where her death occurred, and buried in the Lancaster cemetery at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Pullins was 49 years of age, and before her marriage was Miss Margaret McCarley, a sister of the late James B. McCarley, and was a lady of many sterling qualities. Mr. Pullins is an old resident of Garrard county, having lived in the Paint Lick section until a few years ago when he moved to Berea.

Mat Cohen For Commissioner Of Agriculture.

A pretty good sized boom is under way throughout the state for clever Mat Cohen for Commissioner of Agriculture, and a dispatch from Danville to the daily papers states that Mr. Cohen will announce in the near future. Mat Cohen is splendidly qualified for this position and his wide acquaintance and popularity would make him a strong contender for the nomination. He has a host of friends in Garrard who are anxious for an opportunity to get to vote for him.

Art Exhibit Of Unusual Interest.

Commencing last Tuesday, and continuing all this week, there is being held at the School Auditorium, the Harace K. Turner Art Exhibit for the benefit of the Lancaster Graded School. The patrons and friends of the school are very fortunate indeed to have the opportunity to see this collection of reproductions, the finest ever gathered together in this country. The pictures are finely mounted and hung, and afford an excellent occasion to view the field of reproductive art available for this purpose. The hours are from 10 A. M. to 12 A. M., 2:30 P. M. to 4:30 P. M., 7:30 P. M. to 9 P. M. Season tickets are on sale for 25 cents and every one should take advantage of this excellent opportunity and encourage those who made it possible to bring them here.

Prof. G. L. Waterbury Turns The Trick.

Prof. G. L. Waterbury, formerly of Paint Lick Consolidated Schools, but now happily located at Union City, comes to our rescue and gives us the following statistics:

Union City, Ky. 2-9-14.
The Central Record,
Lancaster, Ky.

Dear Sir:

Answering your request in last issue, permit me to say that February came in on Sunday in the years 1801, 7, 18, 29, 35, 46, 63, 74, 85, 91 and 1903. Also if nothing breaks or flies off, it will come in on Sunday in the years 1925, 31, 42, 53, 59, 70, 81, 87 and 98. By that time none of us will care whether February keeps or not. A six year interval is regularly sandwiched in after two eleven year intervals, except at the change of centuries, where an extra twelve year interval comes in between 1891 and 1903. Preceding this was a six year interval and following it there has been one of eleven years with a similar one to follow, after which the usual order of 6, 11, 11 will continue to the end of the century.

Yours truly,
G. L. Waterbury.

Zanone-Hayes.

Mr. Mike Hayes, the efficient tobacco grader at the Lancaster Tobacco Warehouse and Miss Margaret Zanone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Zanone of this city, were married in Danville last night.

It was quite a surprise to their friends and even the family knew nothing of it or even suspected that it would take place so soon. The friends of this couple join the Record in wishing them much happiness.

Committee On State College Reports.

The Senate prole committee appointed to investigate State University and the colored Industrial School, has submitted its report, which is a very mild one. The only recommendations of consequence are that scholarship students pay their own railroad fare and that the entire institution be placed under military control. In regard to the colored institution the committee praises the work of Prof. Russell, the principal, and recommends that the expensive dairy herd be dispensed with and less expensive stock be secured.

Our Honor Roll.

The following responded since last issue to our call for help, for which we are indeed grateful. If our delinquent subscribers only knew the expense that we have been put to in the past three months, we feel that they would follow the example set by the following:

Mrs. Lucy Henderson, Jesse Beazley, J. G. Burnside, W. R. Preston, Philip Mahoney, Robert Shearer, J. L. Woner, Geo. Burdett, James Robinson, J. H. Witt, J. M. Teater, Milton Ward, T. K. Watson, J. H. Watson, Mrs. J. A. Hubble, O. J. Hendren, Miss Virginia Carter, Mrs E H Walker, Thoms Arnold Jr. J. W. Aker, W. H. Hamilton, Prof. J. W. Ireland.

Instructed To Vote Against Insurance Bill.

There is no measure pending before this Session of the Legislature that has caused so much discussion in this community as the Glenn Insurance Bill, known as Senate Bill No. 109. Last week petitions were sent from here to both Representative J. R. Mount and Senator Charles Montgomery urging its defeat. Upon his return from Frankfort Saturday Mr. Mount felt that the bill was not fully understood by some of those who petitioned him, and he asked a meeting of those interested at the Police Court room on the evening of February 8th, 1914, for a public discussion of the measure. In response to the invitation about forty citizens had assembled when the appointed hour arrived. R. H. Batson was elected chairman of the meeting. Thereupon Representative Mount asked for a statement from those opposing the bill and in response Mr. F. P. Frisbie briefly stated the objectionable features of the measure. Representative J. R. Mount took the floor and made a vigorous attack upon the insurance companies and undertook to defend the bill. He was plied with questions constantly from the audience during his talk. After he had finished the measure, it was attacked by attorneys L. Walker and J. E. Robinson in rather lengthy arguments. The attorneys thought the pending measure unnecessary, unwise and unjust legislation. The part of the bill that allowed the collection and expenditure of the estimated sum of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000.00) was thought to be unwise as well as unnecessary because it would tend to build up an offensive political machine by the political board who had in charge the expenditure. It was thought by these gentlemen that the present law, which gave to the people through its officers the absolute authority to fix the rates of insurance in the State to be sufficient. The proposed law they thought would give the wealthy and influential cheaper insurance, while the less fortunate would pay a higher rate. After everybody had had an opportunity to express his views the consent of J. R. Mount was obtained to take a vote as to the sense of the meeting, and a motion was made and unanimous ly carried that Garrard County's representative vote against the measure and use his efforts to defeat it. The present board of Insurance Commissioners is appointed by the State Auditor. It is reported that the Auditor has been sending out petitions for the purpose of having signatures obtained asking for the enactment of the law. The petition sent here failed of any signatures.

Mr. J. R. Mount seems to be dissatisfied with the effects of the meeting he called on Saturday last and now reports that he would like to have another hearing at the Police Court room Saturday evening at 7 o'clock, at which time he hopes to make a better showing in the defense of the measure.

Legal Blanks In Stock.

The Record carries in stock bank notes, land notes etc., and upon short notice can furnish mortgages and all kinds of legal documents.

Rev. Henry N. Faulconer Holding Successful Meeting In Pa.

Accompanied by a splendid likeness, a Coatesville Pa., paper has the following to say about a successful meeting recently conducted there.

"With interest growing each and every night, the evangelistic services at the Presbyterian Church will continue all this week. Rev. H. N. Faulconer, the evangelist, is a man with a most interesting manner and powerful address. He holds the attention of his audience in convicting power from beginning to end. It has been predicted by some that it will not be long before he will take his place with men like Sunday, Torrey, Smith, Chapman and others.

The meetings have been successful in so far as over seventy-five persons have accepted Christ as their personal Saviour. The services will continue every night week except Saturday. The singing of Mr. Smith is attracting many to the church each night."

WARNING AGAINST SMALLPOX

State Board Of Health Of Kentucky.

Bowling Green, Ky., Feb. 9, 1914
To the Health and Fiscal Officials and People of Kentucky:

Disregard of the repeated warning of this Board in regard to the danger of a wide spread epidemic of smallpox this winter is indicated by its existence in one third of the counties of the State. The disease, repeatedly stamped out in many counties, has been reintroduced in the eastern section of the State through continued disregard and violation of the law and of the rules of the Board, requiring that no unvaccinated person shall be employed, on the part of railroad construction companies and other large employers of unskilled labor. Prompt prosecution by county attorneys will cause the enforcement of this rule and will save the counties of the state thousands of dollars.

More than 25,000 cases and 335 deaths have been caused since smallpox in Kentucky since 1898. The care and prevention of this disease has cost our counties and cities $625,650 and the business loss is estimated at $1,500,000. Vaccination, properly done with reliable virus and repeated every seven years, is required by law and no person who has complied with this law has had smallpox in Kentucky. It costs the average man one dollar to be vaccinated and $140 and six to fourteen weeks isolation to have smallpox. Reliable fresh vaccine points will be furnished by the Board for the use of health authorities for $6.50 per hundred, and are available at any time.

Most of our cases of smallpox are mild, but at best it is a loathsome disease. It is easy to prevent and it is unlawful not to be vaccinated. In the presence of its present widespread existence in the State, intelligent people should not wait for the law to force them to an evident duty. Law abiding people have already or will now be vaccinated. Others should be required to do so by the proper authorities.

By order of the Board:
John G. South, M. D. President.
A. T. McCormack, M. D. Secretary.

STANLEY BILLS INDORSED BY THE PRESIDENT AND JUDICIARY COMMITTEE

Anti-trust Measures of the Administration Presented to Congress Same as Those Previously Introduced by Congressman Stanley.

Washington, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—In the text and provisions of two of the most important of the administration anti-trust bills, introduced in congress last week, Representative A. O. Stanley has found justification for the many months he spent in investigating trust relations and in writing his report and recommendations thereon. As the parallel below will show, the administration bills on interlocking directorates and on giving damage benefits to individuals in government anti-trust suits, approved last Thursday by President Wilson after having been drafted by the judiciary committee, are almost verbatim reproductions of similar measures introduced long ago by the Kentucky representative.

In the interlocking directorate measure nearly all the language of Mr. Stanley's bill of April 5, 1911, is used in the Clayton bill of Jan. 22, 1914, and his penalties of $100 a day or one year's imprisonment, or both, are reproduced outright. In the individual benefits measure Mr. Stanley's bill of Aug. 2, 1912, is used almost in its entirety by the anti-trust experts of the present administration.

Stanley Finds Justification. Thus, after a long wait, Mr. Stanley is able to demonstrate that his pioneer activities against interlocking directorates in 1911, and the report of his committee which investigated the United States Steel corporation in 1912 have become the gospel of the president and his advisers in 1914. The proof presented in the parallel columns below is so absolute as to leave no shadow of doubt behind it.

Representative C. C. Carlin of Virginia and other members of the judiciary subcommittee, which framed the administration bills, freely admit that they used Mr. Stanley's old time language because it was the best available. Of all the bills before them they selected as sections of the current measures (which are to be law) the text of the 1911 and 1912 bills which interlocking directorate bill, which has been lifted bodily by the lawmakers of 1914, is entirely and solely the work of Mr. Stanley. The individual benefits bill was drawn by him and the other Democrats on the Stanley steel committee and was participated in by Louis Brandeis and other experts.

INTERLOCKING DIRECTORATES.

CLAYTON BILL.

(Introduced Jan. 22, 1914.)
"Section 1.—From and after two years from the date of approval of this act no person who is engaged as an individual, or as a member of a partnership, or as a director or other officer of a corporation in the business, in whole or in part, of manufacturing or selling railroad cars or locomotives, or railroad rails, or structural steel, or mining or selling coal, or the conduct of a bank or trust company, shall act as a director or other officer or employee of any railroad or other public service corporation which conducts an interstate business."

"Sec. 3.—That any person who shall violate section 1 or section 2 hereof shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine of $100 a day for each day of the continuance of such violation or by imprisonment for such period as the court may designate, not exceeding one year, or by both, in the discretion of the court."

INDIVIDUAL BENEFIT BILLS.

CLAYTON BILL.

(Introduced Jan. 22, 1914.)
"Sec. 12.—That whenever in any suit or proceeding, civil or criminal, brought by or on behalf of the government under the provisions of this act, a final judgment or decree shall have been rendered to the effect that a defendant, in violation of the provisions of this act, has entered into a contract, combination in form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy in restraint of trade, or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations, or has monopolized or attempted to monopolize, or combined with any person or persons to monopolize, any part of the trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations, the existence of such illegal contract, combination or conspiracy in restraint of trade, or of such attempt or conspiracy to monopolize, shall, to the full extent to which such judgment or decree would constitute in any other proceeding an estoppel as against the defendant, constitute as against such defendant conclusive evidence of the same facts and be conclusive as to the same issues of law in favor of any other person in any other proceeding brought under or involving the provisions of this act."

ARTHUR B. KROCK.

Unique Marriage.

In Sumner county, Tennessee, lives an Irish magistrate, a man of liberal education and a full quota of that mother wit for which his people are noted. A short time ago a negro pair named Jim and Bet called upon the Squire to be united "for better or worse," probably the latter. Having had some notice of their coming, he prepared and actually used this unique ceremony: "Jim, will you take Bet, Without any regret, To love and to cherish, 'Till one of you perish And is laid under the sod, So help you God?" Jim having given the usual affirmative answer, the Squire to Bet. "Bet, will you take Jim And cling to him, Through thick and thin, Holding him to your heart 'Till death do you part?" Bet modestly acquiesced and the newly married couple were dismissed with this "topper over all."

"Through life's alternate joy and strife, I now pronounce you man and wife. Go up life's hill till you get to the level, And salute your bride, you rusty black devil."

"The Firefly" At Ben Ali.

The name of Hammerstein in association with a theatrical organization is generally accepted by theatre-goers as a guarantee of excellence, and by the same token, the announcement that Arthur Hammerstein's new comedy opera, "The Firefly", with Miss Edith Thayer as the bright shining light which will appear at the Ben Ali, Lexington's Theatre Beautiful for 3 performances, Feb. 24th and 25th Matinee Wednesday Feb 25th gives rise to the belief that this city will see something out of the ordinary in the way of comic operatertainment. Arthur Hammerstein, who is the son of the famous impresario, Oscar Hammerstein, has spared neither pains nor expense to make this production the supreme effort of his busy career. Otto Hauerbach wrote the book and Rudolf Friml composed the score. In Miss Thayer's support will be found Maxfield Moree, Berton Lenihan, Chas. H. Bowers, Bert Wheeler, Paul Veron, Thelma Fair, Alice Gaillard, Etta Hager and Irene Samsel.

Buckner Statue.

A special from Washington to the Louisville Times states:

"The suggestion has come from Representative Ben Johnson that the Kentucky Legislature would do well to place a statue of Lieut. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner in the National Hall of Fame.

Mr. Johnson, who was one of the pallbearers at the funeral of Gen. Buckner, reached Washington Sunday after having spent a part of the holiday season in Louisiana and Kentucky.

"Gen. Buckner was a native Kentuckian and died in the room he was born in ninety-one years ago," said Mr. Johnson. "He was a man whom every Kentuckian and every American, regardless of political affiliations, could well be proud of. A distinguished Confederate soldier and an eminent statesman, Buckner's memory should be perpetuated by the State of Kentucky by the placing of a statue of him in the Hall of Fame. I certainly favor honoring him in that way."

Although entitled to two statues in the Hall of Fame, Kentucky has not availed herself of the opportunity to remember any of her worthy sons in this way because of disagreements as to whom to so honor. Abraham Lincoln, Jefferson Davis, Henry Clay, and other great men were born in Kentucky. Lincoln is already represented in the Hall of Fame with two statues."

Our Home Town.

The day seldom arrives in a man's life when he ceases to be interested in the daily or weekly paper of the place that he has once called home. Granted that it is printed on the poorest paper, granted that the typographical display would make the spirit of Ben Franklin blush; granted that there are no editorials, or editorials that are not worth reading—grant all this, and still your feelings and mine and those of every other health mortal are summed up in this little poem, from Denver Post:

When the evenin' shade is fallin' at the endin' of the day,
An' a feller rests from labor, smokin' at his pipe of clay,
There's nothin' does him so much good, be fortune up or down,
As the little country paper from his Old Home Town.

It ain't a thing of beauty and its print ain't always clean,
But it straightens out its temper when a feller's feelin' mean,
It takes the wrinkles off his face an' brushes off the brown,
That little country paper from his Old Home Town.

It tells of all the parties an' the balls of Pumpkin Row,
'Bout who spent Sunday with who's girl' an' how the crops'll grow,
An' how it keeps a feller posted 'bout who's up an' who is down,
That little country paper from his Old Home Town.

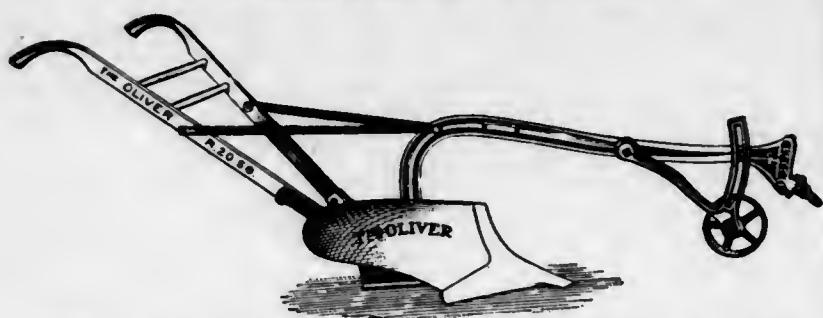

Now, I like to read the dailies an' the story papers too,
An' at times the yaller novels an' some other trash—don't you?
But when I want some readin' that'll brush away a frown
I want that little paper from my Old Home Town.

One man in particular was working as if he were chorus man in a play, just going through the motions and pretending to dig a ditch. The foreman came along and spoke to him. "Don't be afraid," he said, with rich sarcasm. "Lean on 't' shovel now an' thin. If it breaks I'll pay for it!"

Archeological Find.

Some interesting remains of an old Friary have been brought to light during alterations to Cromwell House the site of the birthplace of Oliver Cromwell, at Huntingdon, England. The remains include the base of a wall with parts of two doorways. The foundation of a large chimney stack has been found, and in one hearth ashes still remained. The house is believed to have been founded by the Augustinian Friars shortly before 1285.

Book Windows.

Books are the windows through which the soul looks out. A home without books is like a room without windows. Lincoln's Strange Dream Before His Death

A noon of the day on which Lincoln was shot a cabinet meeting was held, which the president attended, accompanied by General Grant. The meeting was thus described by one of the men who were present—Gideon Welles, secretary of the navy. "Congratulations were interchanged and earnest inquiry was made whether any information had been received from General Sherman. General Grant, who was invited to remain, said he was expecting hourly to hear from Sherman and had a good deal of anxiety on the subject of the movements of his army. "The president remarked that news would come soon, and come favorably, he had no doubt, for he had last night nearly every important event of the war. I inquired the particulars of this remarkable dream. He said it was in my department—it related to the water; that he seemed to be in a singular and indescribable vessel, but always the same, and that he was moving with great rapidity toward a dark and indefinite shore; that he had had this singular dream preceding the firing on "THE NEWS WILL COME," SAID LINCOLN.

Sumter, the battles of Bull Run, Antietam, Gettysburg, Stone River, Vicksburg, Wilmington and many other important events of the war.

"General Grant remarked with some emphasis and asperity that Stone River was no victory, that a few such victories would have ruined the country, and he knew of no important results from it. The president said that perhaps he should not altogether agree with him, but whatever might be the facts his singular dream preceded that fight.

"Victory did not always follow his dream, but the event and results were important. He had no doubt that a battle had taken place or was being fought, and Johnston will be beaten, for I had this strange dream again last night. It must relate to Sherman; my thoughts are in that direction, and I know of no other very important event which is likely just now to occur."

HOW LINCOLN AMUSED EX-PRESIDENT VAN BUREN

IN June, 1842, relates "The Everyday Life of Abraham Lincoln," ex-President Van Buren was journeying through Illinois with a company of friends. When near Springfield they were delayed by bad roads and were compelled to spend the night at Rochester, some miles out. The accommodations at this place were very poor, and a few of the ex-president's Springfield friends proposed to go out to meet him and try to aid in entertaining him. Knowing Lincoln's ability as a talker and story teller, they begged him to go with them and aid in making their guest at the country inn pass the evening as pleasantly as possible. Lincoln, with his usual good nature, went with them and entertained the party for hours with graphic descriptions of western life, anecdotes and witty stories. Judge Peck, who was of the party and a warm friend of the ex-president, says that Lincoln was at his best and declares, "I never passed a more joyous night." There was a constant succession of brilliant anecdotes and funny stories, accompanied by loud laughter, in which Van Buren bore his full share. "He also," says the judge, "gave us incidents and anecdotes of Eliza Williams and other leading members of the New York bar and going back to the days of Hamilton and Burr. Altogether there was a right merry time, and Mr. Van Buren said the only drawback upon his enjoyment was that his sides were sore from laughing at Lincoln's stories for a week thereafter."

VALENTINES

CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright, 1914, by American Press Association.

THE frozen branches of the bare trees creaked as the wind came out of the north. The black trunks stood boldly against the ruddy sunset sky.

"It looks like a Christmas card or a valentine," muttered Abel Dycks as he opened his kitchen door and turned away from the evening sky.

Within the warm, cozy room he could see the trim form of his uncle's widow, Lizzie Dycks, who kept house for him. "It's coming out colder, Aunt Lizzie," he said as he removed his outdoor things.

"So Imogen says," flung Aunt Lizzie over her shoulder as she opened the oven door.

"Imogen?" Abel wheeled about and stared at his aunt. "Imogen?" he repeated stupidly.

"Calling me?" There was a swish of silver skirts as Abel's pretty half cousin glided into the kitchen. She held out slender hands glittering with cheap rings. A deep rose glowed in her thin, dark face, and the scarlet of her lips was pressed in a straight hard line.

Her black eyes had lost their old-time softness. It was as if the past three years behind the counter of a city department store had incased her in a brittle armor of resistance to all softening influences.

Abel shook hands with her and asked perfunctorily concerning her life in the town. Imogen chattered gaily as she flew about helping her mother place supper on the table.

"I didn't take any vacation last summer, and now I'm going to have two weeks off," remarked Imogen, glancing across the table at her cousin's grave, rugged countenance.

Abel was more disturbed at Imogen's return than he dared to admit. He had always known, although he had had no positive proof of that fact, that Imogen had come between him and Dell Gordon, but how he could not conceive, for Abel was slow to think and knew little of women's wiles.

He had been almost engaged to Dell. There only remained the question to be asked and answered, for there was perfect understanding between them. Then he had intrusted the beautiful question to the tender care of good St. Valentine, and from that day to this Dell had ignored him—three long years of heartbreaking pain and self-questioning.

In some way he guessed that Imogen had played him false, but there was no tangible proof that he could lay a finger upon. Imogen and her mother were living in his home, and the girl made no secret of her liking for her handsome cousin. After his estrangement from Dell Gordon, Imogen went away to the nearby city and seldom came home.

"Do you remember Dell Gordon?" asked Mrs. Dycks, with assumed carelessness.

Imogen laughed shrilly. "Of course I do—known her all my life, haven't I?" "I desay," went on Aunt Lizzie hastily. "Mrs. Gordon told me Dell has gone to work in Wickesham's store. She's going to help over Valentine's day, and if they like her maybe she can stay right on. It's a coincidence."

"In what way?" demanded Imogen. "Because it's Valentine's day—she's to work over St. Valentine's day," returned Lizzie significantly.

Abel raised his head and looked deep into her frightened eyes. But he did not speak.

"Well?" Imogen's face was terribly white.

Lizzie Dycks' face was glorified in the moment of her martyrdom.

"It does seem as if the Lord had planned it all. They say she lost her heart on Valentine's day, and maybe—maybe he put her in Wickesham's this year so she'd have a chance to get him back again."

Abel's chair crashed back on the floor. He did not pause to pick it up. He spoke no word of apology.

The two women heard him stamping into his boots. They knew when he shrugged himself into the big bearskin coat, and there was silence between them until the gate latch clicked behind his flying feet.

Then Lizzie Dycks lifted her pale face from her shaking hands and looked at her daughter.

"Forgive me, Imogen," she pleaded pitifully. "I had to do it."

Imogen suddenly looked old.

"You know, then, mother?" she whispered, with a dull blush.

Lizzie nodded. "I suspected—I didn't know how, but I knew that you played 'em some trick that Valentine's day."

"Oh, mother, mother!" suddenly wailed Imogen, as she laid her dark head against her mother's bosom.

The two women talked intimately for several moments. Then Imogen arose and slipped into warm wraps. Her face was flushed, and her eyes shone with soft brilliancy.

"Do you want I should go with you, dear?" asked her mother tenderly.

"No—no—mother, you have had enough to bear. After they are married you will come to me, and we will make our home in Brushville." She kissed Lizzie's cheek and was gone.

Outside, the moon was shining and the north wind blew the powdery snow in crisp, stinging flurries that sparkled like diamond dust.

Imogen ran over the creaking crust of whiteness, now and then straining her eyes to discern Abel's dark form ahead. If she might confess to him now, it would be easier than to admit her duplicity before Dell Gordon's reproachful eyes.

"But it will have to be done the hardest way," she murmured as she hurried on. "I deserve it all, every bit. It makes me sick to think of myself then. I couldn't do it now; I care too much for Abel. It's in a new, different way, I guess."

Wickesham's bookstore was brilliantly lighted this eve of St. Valentine's day. There was a constant stream of people passing in and out of the doorway. Within there were much mirth and merry chatter among the young customers as they examined the gay valentines spread on the counters.

Imogen saw Abel's broad shoulders pushing through the crowd toward the back of the store, where Dell Gordon's crisp, fair curls and sad face appeared behind the counter.

She must be there, shoulder to shoulder with Abel, so that he should have a fair chance with Dell.

Imogen nodded greetings right and left as she hurried toward Abel. Those who knew her and Abel smiled knowingly at each other. A marriage between the young farmer and his half cousin was expected.

Abel Dycks and Dell Gordon were alone for a moment.

"Dell, tell me what happened. I never could guess what it did!" Dell shrugged her thin shoulders. "You never did anything—much," she said reluctantly. "Hello, Imogen!"

Abel frowned down at the new arrival. Imogen's lips were pale as they framed her confession.

"You didn't do a thing, Abel," put in Imogen hastily. "I was the one who made the trouble."

"Imogen?" Abel's protest was drowned in the girl's low voiced confession.

"I must tell what I did. I am sorry—sorry, but it is not too late. You sent a valentine to Dell that day three years ago. I—I saw it on your bureau, and, oh, Abel, I opened it, and—I took it out, and I put in a horrid couplet. Here is the one I took out, Dell. It is yours."

Imogen extended the tender missive across the counter. It was a gay composition of intertwined hearts.

Abel snatched it from Imogen's hand and gave it to Dell. His face was ashen with emotion.

"It isn't too late, Dell," he muttered hoarsely.

Dell Gordon surveyed the valentine with some impatience. She made no move to take it. There was compunction and some fear in the glance she cast about before she leaned across the counter.

"IT ISN'T TOO LATE," HE MUTTERED.

"It is too late now, Abel. It was too late three years ago," she said in a strained voice.

"What do you mean?" demanded Abel.

"Promise not to tell?" Dell's pretty face was working strangely.

Abel nodded, and Imogen leaned forward and caught Dell's hand in her own.

"What is it, Dell?" she asked, with a pitying glance at Abel.

"Well, long before Abel sent that valentine—yes, while I was keeping company with you, Abel—I was married to Frank Keane. His folks objected, and so we ran away. Nobody knew it but my folks. And you know what happened: Frank went to the Philippines and was killed, and I shall never care about anybody else. It's all right, Imogen; don't cry. I'm the one to blame. Abel—I hope you'll forgive me."

She darted away to the front of the store, leaving the two stunned and shaken. As in a dream they heard her gay, artificial laugh that covered the secret of her widowhood.

Somewhat Abel found himself on the homeward road with his cold hand tight in Imogen's grasp.

He looked down and saw hot tears coursing down her cheeks. Where was Imogen's veneer of hardness?

"Don't be sorry for me, dear," he said with an effort. "Somehow I don't seem to care very much about it. Now it appears to me as if there was nothing good and true in the world except you."

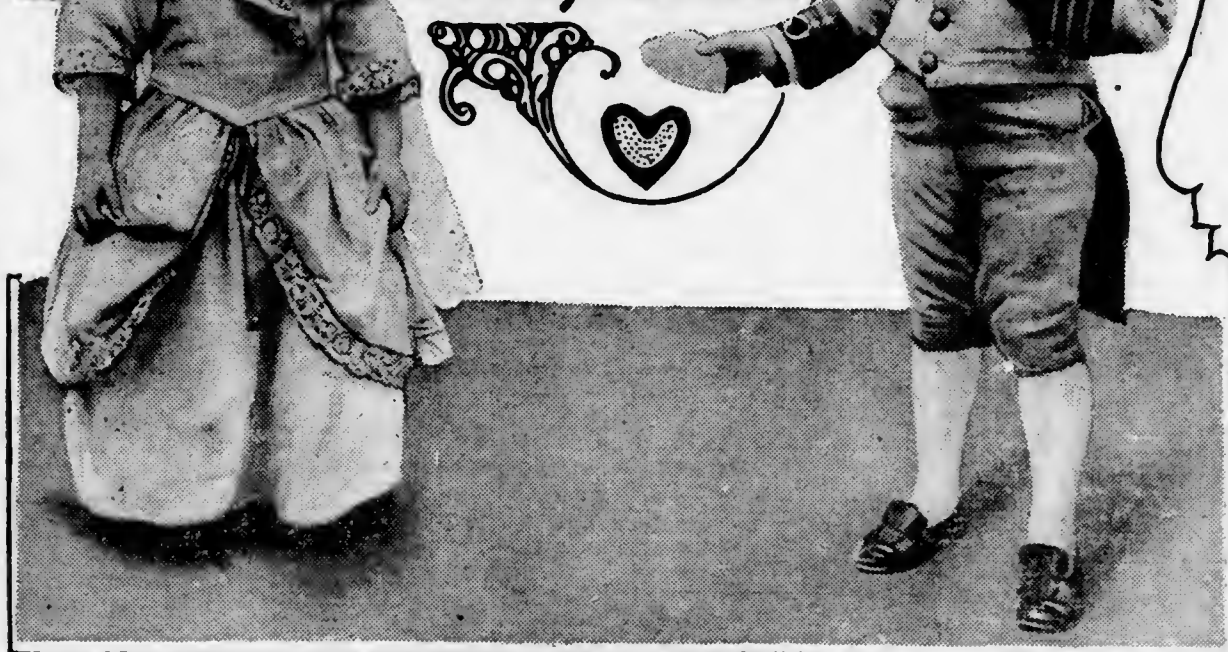

"Me?" cried poor Imogen, covering her burning face.

Abel gently drew her hands down and held them tightly.

"Yes, you. You shined because you loved me. Your confession has wiped out all else, dear. He stooped and kissed her face, softened into wonderful beauty and happiness.

St. Valentine's Day Entertaining

An Original Idea For an Evening Party and Some Appropriate Dishes For the Collation

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY celebrations must have been particularly attractive in the era of brocades and minuets, to which time the elaborate paper lace effusions dedicated to the occasion belong. This is not a sentimental generation, but we still cling to the outward semblance of bygone fancies, and hence St. Valentine's day is still revered. Besides, the modern girl will tell you that it gives her so many inspirations in the way of table decorations if she wishes to entertain.

One artistic girl who gave a valentine party as a farewell after a long visit in a distant city painted all the heart shaped candy boxes in water color. The design was wreaths of tiny roses. The cakes and loaves were also heart shaped. Cupids may be chosen for table decoration—not the statuette of Cupid and Psyche, for that tale suggests the flight of love. There is a modern bronze Cupid, who hears the word "Viel." A happy defiant boy, this Cupid. His Latin has been humorously changed in significance by the Bryn Mawr college girls, who dub the statuette "The Viel Kid."

If you own one of these cupids just make him feel the weight of responsibility that should rest upon his shoulders. Hang a whole pack of hearts, silk or chiffon. Let these hearts be either letters, with verses for each guest to read, or boxes of candy or postage stamp cases for the young men. The latter gifts are to be delicate hints that while the men are to be writing letters the fair recipients are to play the needle on their trousseaux.

The best recipes you have for edibles may come forth with appropriate and beguiling names and decorated appropriately without straining for novel effects that are unsatisfactory and tend toward the ridiculous.

If, besides the flowers, the place cards, sandwiches, cakes and loaves are in heart shape it is quite sufficient, though arrows may be thrust in for decoration.

Fudge can be made in heart shape, then covered with red paper and tied with ribbons. This is what one girl did for sweet valentines for practical use.

If children are to be among the guests let two be dressed as the king and queen of hearts and bring on a dish of tarts. Omit the knife of hearts, for if your tarts are good you will not want him to run off with them. Bake the tarts in heart shaped pattypans.

In case you are to give a valentine luncheon either have a comical menu card for each person or announce each dish—as, for instance, have "turtle-doves in a cot." That will prove to be squabs in a deep pie. To make the crust suggest a thatched pigeon cot use spaghetti that has been cooked without being broken up fine. Dress it with butter and lay it over the top of the pie, letting it buckle until of a light color, or line a buttered dish with the spaghetti before laying on the luted crust. When the pie is turned out the spaghetti will be the top or roof.

My Good Luck Valentine

By REGINALD WRIGHT KAUFFMAN

Copyright, 1914, by American Press Association.

LONG what weary miles you went,
Grim Horsehoe, thus to come to rest
At last, grown old, our worn, foreseen,
As my dear Lady's rugged guest!
And yet, because you are so old
And I have found you in the dust,
Under your grime, they say, lurks gold,
And luck lies hidden in your rust.

Then tell her that I too, have been
A stained and tattered wanderer
Through sorrows deep and deserts lean
Before I could ascend to her;
And give her, Horsehoe, what is yours
To give—I need not luck nor gold
If in her heart for me endures
The love that never can be old.

An Old Love's Valentine

By T. C. HARBAUGH

Copyright, 1914, by American Press Association.

An old valentine! Three little love verses! She merrily laughed as she penned them, I know, And now as I read them my spirit

The joys and the shine of a sweet long ago. The ribbons that tied it have years ago faded, But still round a heart like tendrils they twine.

And Cupid looks on with his merry eyes shaded, For well he remembers the old valentine.

Beautiful still, though some letters have vanished Which the heart can supply, for love will not forget, And out of the past which the present has banished

Comes a pair of bright eyes that can fascinate yet, And over the page of my valentine cherished Fall tresses as lovely as Fairy-land's gold.

In the storms of the years 'tis not this that hath perished, For it links me anew to a sweet-heart of old.

She stands at my side and her soft hand caresses A cheek set aflame by the strength of her sway, And I wait in a dream for the kiss she impresses

On a brow that shall feel it forever and a day. Aye, out of the shadows that wearily lengthen And pillage the vistas of half of their shine

Return the old loves that the spirit doth strengthen With the half faded rimes of the old valentine.

I wonder today if her memories ever, Love gilded, cause cheeks, once rosy, to burn. They told me she blushing said it was "never"

The big valentine I sent in return. And it would meet, as we may in life's gloaming, Two sweethearts whose tresses doth rival the snow, I'm sure she would smile as when Love went a-roaming

And sent me this valentine long, long ago.

I smooth out its creases with delicate fingers; She'd help me, I know, could I summon her here, For time is a traitor though Memory lingers

And a kiss on this faded old page would appear. I won't; I lost her; the soft flakes were falling, And white in the wind stood the crest of the pine, And, dreaming, I hear her, as long ago, calling

For the love that she sent with this old valentine.

I'll keep it to cherish so long as life's river Flows on with a song to the ultimate sea. She still must remember, for dear is the giver, To the lover who talks to her love verses three,

And if she were here I am sure she would listen With a smile as I read her each half faded line, And maybe two eyes with affection would glisten

And sweethearts would meet o'er the old valentine.

A Fateful Valentine

By ANNA A. GREENLEAF.

DEACON PERKINS was the "handy man" of the neighborhood. Pleasant, obliging, willing to inconvenience himself if need be to do a favor for his friends and neighbors, he was often called upon on his weekly trips to town to do their errands. Those who knew him most intimately never suspected that he possessed one grain of self conceit, yet he it knew that he had one peculiarity that savored somewhat of that undesirable quality, in that he secretly believed every marriageable female for miles around to be scheming to provide herself with a husband at the expense of his bachelorhood. There were two women whom he studiously avoided—Mary Ann Spratt, a thin, angular, sharp tongued spinster of fifty, and Mrs. Mudgett, a plump, smiling, rosy little widow of the same age.

On this particular morning, the 14th of February, to be exact, the deacon hitched up and started for town.

The afternoon was waning when the deacon drove home with his wagon well filled with dry goods and provisions. Miss Spratt invited him to sit while she told him about the leak around the chimney; then came the flow of utter talk, which he so much dreaded. When the confidential stage was reached, however, the words of "The Spider and the Fly" came to warn him and he made bold his escape. When he reached the Widow Mudgett's the widow looked so very harmless and pretty in her bright afternoon gown, with her little curls bobbing up and down her forehead, that the deacon forgot his fears, and after laying his hands upon the table stove, enjoying its warmth, and would fain have stayed longer had not a tiny spider, busily weaving his web, attracted his attention.

There was but one more delivery to be made, and he found the little girl who had ordered a valentine waiting at her gate for the coveted treasure. "Is it pretty?" she asked eagerly. "It is a real beauty," the deacon answered, smiling, "and as to the verse—well, I forgot all about the verse, but I guess likely it has one. We'll see." But the deacon searched his baskets and pockets in vain.

HE WAS IN THE WIDOW'S ARMS.

"There, there," he said consolingly, as the child began to whimper, "don't cry; 'tain't lost. I must have left it somewhere, and I'll hunt it up." As he spoke the unwilling man was turned about, toward the widow's.

In the meantime the widow began unwrapping her bundles when she caught sight of an envelope lying upon the table. It was unaddressed, but her woman's curiosity tempted her to peep in. "Tain't a letter at all," she muttered in disappointed tones. "It's Nanette's valentine. I heard her ask the deacon to get her one." As she spoke she removed the valentine, idly inspected it and began to read the verse.

"I've caught him this time," she said. "He is too polite, too generous hearted, to humiliate me."

At this juncture the deacon entered the room, and before he had a chance to speak he was struggling in the plump widow's embrace, her soft arms closed about his neck, and she implanted a loud, resounding kiss upon his cheek.

He was terribly shocked. His eyes bulged with a frightened stare, and his face, never handsome, became so ludicrous that the Widow Mudgett could scarce contain her risibles as she dived from her bosom the innocent cause of his present predicament and held the verse to his astonished gaze. He read: "Don't keep me waiting, but say you'll be mine; Let a kiss be your answer, my sweet valentine."

"Such a romantic proposal!" cooed the widow. "How could I help saying 'Yes'?"

It happened, he knew not how, that the wedding day was set, and all the plans were made ere he left.

Summing Up The Evidence.

Many Lancaster People Have Been Called As Witnesses.

Week after week has been published the testimony of Lancaster people—kidney sufferers—backache victims—people who have endured many forms of kidney, bladder or urinary disorders. These witnesses have used Doan's Kidney Pills. All have given their enthusiastic approval. It's the same everywhere. 30,000 American men and women are publicly recommending Doan's—always in the home papers. Isn't it a wonderful, convincing mass of proof? If you are a sufferer your verdict must be "Try Doan's first."

Here's one more Lancaster case. Frank Hillard, Water St., Lancaster, Ky., says: "I had weak kidneys. Their action was irregular and often painful. My back pained me. It was then that I used Doan's Kidney Pills. They fixed me up in good shape. The pains left and my kidneys became normal."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Old Folks, Here's Real Joy For You

Wonderful ROOT JUICE Will Have You Feeling Ten Years Younger in That Many Days. Guaranteed.

After fifty or sixty years of hard use and abuse the human engine needs frequent coaxing to keep it running smoothly and you'll be surprised at what a little of the right kind of coaxing will do. Rheumatic twinges, sore, stiffened joints, and muscles, lame back, weak kidneys, and bladder, nerve weakness, indigestion, loss of appetite, interrupted sleep and other ailments so common in advanced years are being made to disappear almost as if by magic.

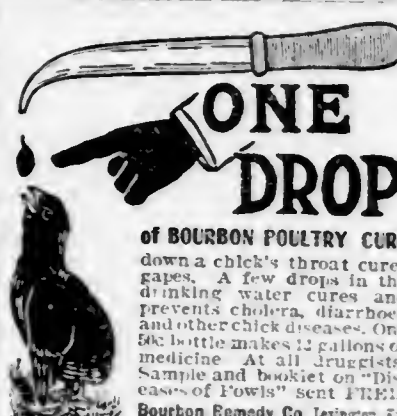

"Ha, I'm Ready for Anything Now." Wonderful ROOT JUICE, made from a collection of Nature's own restoratives, roots, herbs, leaves, and barks, is accomplishing things for old folks that you'll scarcely believe possible. The way it builds up the system, cleans out the blood, stirs up the bowels and the liver, tones the stomach and strengthens the weak places is remarkable. It exerts a splendid action upon the weakened nervous system too. It's different from anything else you ever tried and so dependable in its action that it is sold under a positive guarantee.

No one takes any chances with ROOT JUICE. It has got to benefit and please everybody who uses it or back goes every cent paid for it. That's the best kind of proof of its merits.

Best of all, you don't have to take it for the rest of your natural life to get results. Most people feel its benefit within ten days. The appetite improves, so does digestion. That frequent and troublesome kidney action is regulated, so is the bowel action and almost before you realize it that stiffness and soreness in the limbs and muscles disappears. That shaky, nervous feeling gives way to returning strength and force and you feel like a different person.

Try it. You're not taking the slightest risk because you've got to get results or your money back instantly. You'll say it's worth ten times the price and you'll feel better and stronger than you have in many a day. It's a food, a drug, a self-root juice at one dollar per large bottle and the positively guarantee it. Get ROOT JUICE this time and get relief.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reliable physicians, as the damage they will do is far too great to be good. You can possibly derive from them, HALL'S Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying HALL'S Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials for HALL'S Catarrh Cure are everywhere. Price 75c per bottle. Take HALL'S Family Pills for constipation.

Sanitary
Clen Lily FLOUR.
PURE
Wholesome

Why Clean?
Because the Wheat is first screened, then washed and scoured.

Why Pure?
Because everything impure is removed by our new process of cleaning.

Why Sanitary?
Because under high Vacuum pressure to extract all dust and dirt under which the Wheat goes, renders it so.

Why Wholesome?
Because everything is separated from the pure nutritious part of the Wheat Kernel.

After expending several hundred dollars and months of hard work, we now announce with pride the above results.
TRY A SACK.

GARRARD MILLING CO.

For Sale:

We have seven heifers to freshen within the next sixty days, and as our milking barn is already full, we must dispose of cows, in order to make room for them. We have some good ones to sell.

We also have some nice shoats weighing about 80 pounds for sale.

Blue Grass Dairy & Ice Co

With Shining Eyes and Watering Mouths
the children wait for you to cut the cake you have made with White Swan Flour

Don't fear their anticipations of something extra will not be realized. Use of WHITE SWAN FLOUR insures a perfectly delicious cake if the other ingredients are as good. Order a sack as an aid to fine cake making. It is splendid.
